Objectives

Our objective is to throw the question about the adequacy of the referred denomination; in this sense, maybe it would be more appropriate to talk about osteo-aposition, osteo-adherence or other appellations, more modest than the overwhelming "osteointegrative".

Methods

It is not because of the lack of Material to say what we say, and it is not necessary to come up to very sophisticated works to understand our assertions, all said with modesty. The common sense and the daily practice show us that even if there is a notable organic tolerance to titanium, that does not mean that there exists any kind of interactive biology, between the alveolodental organic structures and the metal in question.

Results

From the introspective study that we think it relies on the clinical reality to which almost everyone can access, it seems it allows us, from there, to restrict the mentioned term, to a more modest status than, even with good intentions, has been receiving.

Conclusions

No one that we know, and that could be more debatable, has scientifically given biointegrative properties and behaviors almost indisputable to the term OI, that not by casualty we write it down abbreviated.

EACCME

European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education

Certificate

24th EACMFS Congress

Munich, Germany, 18/09/2018-21/09/2018 has been accredited by the European Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (EACCME®) for a maximum of 31 European CME credits (ECMEC®s).

Each medical specialist should claim only those credits that he/she actually spent in the educational activity.

The EACCME® is an institution of the European Union of Medical Specialists (UEMS), www.uems.net.

Through an agreement between the European Union of Medical Specialists and the American Medical Association, physicians may convert EACCME® credits to an equivalent number of AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Information on the process to convert EACCME® credits to AMA credits can be found at www.ama-assn.org/education/earn-credit-participation-international-activities.

Live educational activities occurring outside of Canada, recognised by the UEMS-EACCME® for ECMEC® credits are deemed to be Accredited Group Learning Activities (Section 1) as defined by the Maintenance of Certification Program of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.

Dr. FRANCISCO HERNÁNDEZ ALTEMIR

has been awarded 31 European CME Credits (ECMEC®s)
for his/her attendance at this event
